SLRD expands the use of Cloudpermit to include development applications and zoning bylaw updates
Expansion enhances efficiency and transparency

Pemberton, BC – The Squamish-Lillooet Regional District (SLRD) has expanded its use of Cloudpermit, a cloud-based software system that supports the building and development process, to now include the management of development permits, temporary use permits and variance permit applications. The expansion provides a more user-friendly process with increased accessibility and transparency, while improving efficiencies and workflow processes for the SLRD.

The SLRD first implemented Cloudpermit for building permits and inspection requests in May 2023, and the platform has since helped streamline services and communication. With the addition of planning and development application capabilities, most public-facing services provided by the Building and Planning department can now be performed online. Through the expanded program, building and planning department processes are streamlined, and transparency is increased with the capability of tracking submissions in real-time, communicating directly with SLRD staff through the platform. The centralized process reduces duplication and administrative delays. Paper applications remain available upon request.

"Expanding the Cloudpermit service reflects the SLRD's commitment to modernizing our services to best meet the needs of the people relying on these services," said SLRD Board Chair Jen Ford. "Projects like the Cloudpermit expansion align with the Board's strategic priority of Responsible Governance and Service Excellence and allow us to provide faster service, with greater transparency, better support and improved efficiencies."

About the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District

Located in southwestern BC, the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District (SLRD) is a local government federation consisting of four member municipalities (the District of Lillooet, the District of Squamish, the Village of Pemberton and the Resort Municipality of Whistler) and four unincorporated, rural electoral areas (A, B, C, and D). Headquartered in Pemberton, which is the approximate geographic centre of the region, the SLRD delivers a wide range of local, regional and sub-regional services to approximately 50,496 residents (2021 Census as certified by the Minister of Municipal Affairs).

The Squamish-Lillooet Regional District is found within the traditional territories of several First Nations, including the S̓kw̓xwú7mesh Úxwumixw (Squamish), St'át'imc and Lílwat. Small parts of the SLRD also overlap with the traditional territories of the Stó:lō, Tsleil-Waututh, Nlaka'pamux, Tsilhqot'in, and Secwepemc Nations. While the SLRD does not provide direct services to the residents of the First Nations communities located within the region, the organization is committed to enhancing relations with the Indigenous communities and First Nations within whose territories the SLRD operates.
